Description of the Training:

Creating Leadership Accountability walks students through the steps to achieve leadership accountability by first examining their own personal commitment and accountability to live out their values as well as learning how to establish group commitment and accountability through common expectations. Commitment and accountability is a three tier process resulting in a student's ability to not only personally live out commitment and accountability, but also teach and empower their peers to be accountable to themselves and others, also known as leadership accountability.

Objectives of the Training:

At the end of this training, participants will be able to:

- Identify aspects of their personal commitment & accountability
- Understand elements necessary to create group commitment & accountability
- Recognize the importance of establishing leadership commitment & accountability to empower others to foster personal and group commitment and accountability to create a culture of excellence
